HONEYWELL SAFETY AND PRODUCTIVITY SOLUTIONS

Date: April 28, 2023
To: Honeywell Respiratory PPE Customers
Subject: Market Action Notice – PAPR PA911

WARNING! All recipients of this Market Action Notice must read, understand and follow all instructions carefully.

Dear Honeywell Respiratory Protection Customer,

At Honeywell, our mission is to be the global leader in personal protective equipment with innovative solutions that help protect workers and workplaces. Aligned with this commitment, Honeywell issued a Notice on or about March 17, 2023, related to PA911 Headpieces.

Honeywell identified label non-conformity on our product PA911 manufactured between August 2021 and March 2023. Next to "ANSI/ISEA Z87.1", which is standard for Eyes and Face protection, was also written "type 1, class G". Types and classes are not defined in this standard. Nevertheless, types and classes are defined in ANSI/ISEA Z89.1 which is standard for hard-hats. Having this "type 1, class G" written next to standard for Eyes and Face protection might cause confusion that PA911 is hard-hat.

PA911 is only certified for Eye-Face protection. Labels on all affected products in Honeywell were corrected."

Honeywell regrets any inconvenience this issue has caused. Honeywell remains committed to worker safety, and we felt it was necessary and prudent to take these actions.
